Message From the Principal

Dear Mapleview Families,

I hope this email finds you well. Given the current school closure and launching of virtual learning on Monday, I wanted to communicate with all families with some information prior to the weekend.

First, please know that in these difficult times, our number one focus is the care for your student at Mapleview. If there is anything we can do to help over the next few weeks, please don't hesitate to let us know. Our office will remain open for parents to call and we will always respond to parent or student communication.

Second, with virtual learning beginning on Monday, we know that this may be a difficult transition for many families. Our goal is not to overwhelm our students or parents at any time. If you have questions, your teachers and office staff are here to answer them. We will be flexible. Teachers are going to start small, keeping things simple initially, then building upward when we are all comfortable.

Finally, we know that you have received a great deal of emails from staff over the past week. Our goal is to streamline all communication from the Mapleview office and direct you to our website with resources. I will be sending a weekly update each week, similar to our Thursday notes, and we will always direct you to our website with more information. (The link for those resources can be found here.) For example, Mrs. Dietzler, our School Counselor, has put together some great resources for families, and those are linked on our site. More resources will follow. We don't want to overwhelm you with emails, but we want to make sure you have all of the resources you need.

Together, we will work through this new reality. I miss the students and the energy of the building. Take care during this time!

Sincerely,

Jason Nate
